

"The Tracer" combines in a single freeware software app different networking tools: traceroute, whois and port scanner.

This software will help you with to find out where a website or a person is really located and other very useful information about them.

The screenshot shows the 'The Tracer' application interface. At the top, there is a menu bar with 'File', 'Tools', and 'Help'. Below the menu bar is a search bar with the address 'www.example.com' and buttons for 'Trace', 'Whois', and 'Scan'. The main area is divided into three panels:

- Map Panel: A map of California showing the route of the traceroute. The route starts from the left and moves eastward through various cities like Santa Clara, San Jose, and San Francisco.
- Table Panel: A table with columns: Hop, IP Address, Domain name, Round Trip Time (ms), and Status. The table shows 18 hops, all with a 'Success' status.
- Log Panel: A panel showing the raw traceroute data, including hop numbers, IP addresses, and geographical coordinates (LAT, LON, Country).
- Report Panel: A panel providing summary information: 'DESTINATION: www.example.com', 'DATE TIME: 09/17/11 07:12:23', 'Number of total hops found: 18', 'Number of hops not responding on route: 0', 'Average time: 87ms', and 'PORT 80 for http requests is OPEN'.

Traceroute is useful for displaying the route (path) and measuring transit delays of packets across the Internet. "The Tracer" shows different diagnostic information about the single hops and their geographical locations.

Whois is used for querying the databases that store the registered users or assignees of a domain name or an IP address.

The port scanner probes a server or host for open ports to verify security policies identifying running services.
